It was a trip I'll never forget. A few years ago I went out camping with my family. It was a long journey to the forest situated dozens of miles away from our home.

gt On the picture I took, there are my parents and my younger sister. My father wore a light jacket and a striped hat, he seemed happy when playing with my sister, who wore a shirt and had a scarf on her neck. She always loved nature and all sorts of bewildering experiences.

ex Actually, on our way home my sister had noticed some creature laying on the road, she shouted: 'stop the car!'. My father was confused by such an unexpected call, so he hit the brakes. 'What happened?' he asked my sister. In a moment she ran out of the cover and saw a ferret with a wounded paw. It must have been challenging for the animal to move, and perhaps because of shock ~~it~~ it seemed to be ignorant.

ex
logic? Just as we took it inside our car, a bizzare storm broke out. We rushed to the vet who could only tell ~~my~~ my father that the animal died of blood loss. My dad did not ^{want} to dissapoint my sister with such terrible news and he told her that after visiding the vet, ferret did not have to worry about anything, since it was in a better place.
